

CARS CRASH IN COLUMBUS AV.; 14 HURT.

Rear-End Collision at Sixty-fifth Street Knocks the Rear Platform of the Forward Car Into Splinters, and Throws Several Scores of Passengers Into a Mad Panic.

Fourteen persons were more or less hurt in a rear-end collision between two cars at Sixty-fifth street and Columbus avenue to-day. The conductor of the forward car, Bernard McDonald, of No. 236 Ninth avenue, was the only one badly enough hurt to go to a hospital. He sustained a serious injury to one of his knees.

The rest of the injured were passengers. They had cuts, bruises and sprains, but not sufficiently serious to make it necessary for them to go to the hospital. They had their troubles attended to in the drug store of Wiley Holmes, at Sixty-fifth street and Columbus avenue, by the clerks there and by Dr. Miller, of Roosevelt Hospital, after which some of them went home and others limped on to their day's work.

The colliding cars were No. 2,330 of the Columbus avenue line, and No. 229 of the Ninth avenue line. Both of them were southbound at the time of the accident.

A Dangerous Crossing.

The Ninth avenue cars swing into the Columbus avenue tracks at Sixty-fifth street. This crossing, which is at a sharp angle, is one of the most dangerous in the city, both by reason of the fact that it is on an acute angle and because of the number of lines which use it. All the Columbus avenue, Ninth avenue, Seventh avenue, Sixth avenue and Amsterdam avenue and the old Boulevard lines pass at this point on either the one track or the other.

Locked 3 Days in Freight Car

Two Youths Saw Ball Game in Springfield, Picked the Wrong Place for a Nap and Landed in Mott Haven.

James Reade and John Smith, both eighteen years old, of Boston, Mass., who were arraigned in the Morrisania Court, today, charged with violating the railroad law, told a thrilling story of being locked in a freight car for nearly three days to Magistrate Hogan.

The boys were found in the car yesterday afternoon in the Mott Haven yards of the New Haven road. One of the yard men heard them pounding heavily on the door of a sealed freight car and released them. They were arrested, although they protested they had not entered the car intentionally.

In court the boys said they went from Boston to Springfield last Friday afternoon to witness a baseball game. After the game they said they drank liquor and Reade said he remembered crawling into the freight car with Smith to sleep.

At last when the door was opened they were hungry and it took them some time to realize where they were.

By the rumbling of the car over the tracks they knew they were travelling fast, and when they tried to open the door of the car they found it locked. Both tried to attract the attention of some one every time the car stopped, but without result.

After becoming exhausted from their efforts to secure help both boys fell asleep. When they awoke they were weak from lack of nourishment and each took turns pounding on the door of the car.

It was late yesterday afternoon that the car was shunted on to a siding in the Mott Haven yards. The boys' arms were then so tired that they lay on the floor of the car and kicked at the door with their feet.

At last when the door was opened they were so weak that they could barely get out.

Collision Made Certain.

Just as the latter was rounding into the straight a passing truck pulled in front of the car and the motorman was obliged to pull up sharp. This made a collision inevitable, for W. was right after the other car. His car struck the rear platform of the one in front, dislodged and cut it right off, roof and all.

W. had time to jump aside and save himself, but McDonald and the passengers who stood on the rear platform of the Ninth avenue car didn't, and they were caught in the wreck.

The force of the collision sent the Ninth avenue car spinning ahead for a block with all the passengers mixed up in each other's laps. When they stopped untangled they found that they had all been pretty well shaken up. The small passengers in the rear car had also been knocked off their feet or their seats, as they were.

One of the most seriously hurt, however, was in the front car. George Matthews, of No. 277 Columbus avenue, was on the platform and was thrown to the ground, doubling his left leg under him and badly spraining it. Fred Hisco, of No. 1,334 Third avenue, had his ankle dislocated.

Girl in a Panic.

Miss Grace Barnes, of No. 104 West Ninety-fourth street, got rattled when the crash came and made for the rear of the car. Instead of the front exit, and was also thrown into the wreckage. She sustained a sprain of her right wrist and a badly bruised right knee.

When the Roosevelt Hospital ambulance came, McDonald and the injured passengers were taken to the hospital. Among the less seriously damaged were a Mrs. Walsh, a Miss Adams, a woman named McLaughlin, a man named McLaughlin and a woman named McLaughlin. The injured passengers were taken to the hospital.

BRITISH HURRY WARSHIP TO TRINIDAD.

Cruiser Retribution Leaves Halifax on Hasty Notice, Presumably to Quell New Disorder.

(Special to The Evening World.)

HALIFAX, N. S., April 27.—The naval authorities have received cable orders from the Admiralty to despatch the cruiser Retribution, which is at present in the harbor, to Trinidad, to quell the trouble there.

The crew of the Retribution, consisting of some 100 extra men, are coaling the ship and filling her with ammunition provisions.

She will get away to-night.

This hasty order was reported due to a renewal of local trouble in Trinidad. The natives had protested against the British Governor there about a month ago and insisted in a riotous demonstration that a demand on the Governor by the people for the dismissal of the trouble-makers be granted.

The supposed trouble was transferred to the British.

FAITHFUL DOG BIT RESCUER.

Mrs. Moulder's Clothing Was Ablaze, but Excited Terrier Would Not Permit Neighbor to Go to Her Relief.

So conscientiously faithful to his mistress was the fox terrier of Mrs. Mary J. Moulder that he bit the leg of a man who sought to extinguish her burning clothing to-day. Because of the delay caused by the attack of the dog, Moulder was so seriously burned

SHERIFF'S OFFICERS SUPPORTING POLICY KING "AL" ADAMS TO THE PRISON VAN FROM THE TOMBS.

HE WARNED THE JURORS.

"I think I see what the situation is," he said. "I have been approached myself and others in this room have been approached, but I thank Heaven most of them were men enough to be true to their oaths and not curs enough to take dirty money."

"I want to tell you two men something. I shall see this thing through, no matter what the outcome of this trial may be. I will spend $1,000 of my own money to discover just exactly what is going on in this room and just exactly what is being done outside, and I'm not going to see a couple of men sell out a whole jury on which are turned the eyes of all New York."

Another juror, like Mr. Wiley a man of wealth, said he too would give $1,000 for an investigation. The twelve men grew excited and a knockdown fight nearly resulted as charges of "selling out" flew about. But when the final vote was taken the verdict was in favor of conviction.

DAISY FOUND IN GIRL TELLS OF BOY'S CLOTHES. A STOLEN WILL.

Runaway Girl Told a Fib About Her Sex, but a Tell-Tale Blush Gave the Policeman His Cue.

Daisy Hoffman, the seventeen-year-old girl who ran away from home yesterday in boy's clothing, her long hair cut short, is back with her mother.

Mrs. Hoffman asked the police to look for the truant, and a general alarm was sent out. This afternoon Policeman Moore, of the East One Hundred and Fourth street station, saw a crowd of boys in One Hundred and Ninth street.

At Third avenue one of them separated from the rest and crossed to the other side of the street. Moore noted that this youngster answered the description of Daisy. He walked up to her.

"Hello, Daisy," he said.

The delicate cheeks of the youngster flushed crimson in a way that seventeen-year-old New York boys don't usually do.

"My name's Dave," said the young person.

"Where do you live?" asked the policeman, and before the child had time to think she had given her mother's address, No. 127 Second avenue.

Then Moore took her to the police station, where at first she stoutly insisted that she was a boy. She was taken to court and her mother sent for.

On Mrs. Hoffman's promise to keep close watch on her, Magistrate Flannery refrained from sending her to an institution. Daisy refused to say where she had spent the night.

First of All, a Meal.

Patrolman Ryan, of the Alexander Avenue Station, called the patrol wagon and the boys were taken to the station-house. A meal was sent for and the boys ate ravenously.

Each had a considerable sum of money and insisted on going home. Ryan had a considerable sum of money and insisted on going home. Ryan had a considerable sum of money and insisted on going home.

Robb Takes Place of Christianity

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Charles H. Robb, Assistant Attorney for the Department of Justice, has been appointed Acting Assistant Attorney-General for the Post-Office Department to fill the place temporarily vacated by Mr. Christianity, who was relieved at his own request from that position.

Mr. Robb is from Vermont. He accepted the appointment with the distinct understanding that it was because of the existing condition of affairs at the department, and that it was not to be permanent.

It is not believed at the department that Mr. Christianity will ever resume his place. Mr. Payne said to-day that an investigation would have been ordered even had Mr. Christianity not asked for it.

ROME GREETED KING EDWARD.

British Ruler Jumps Nimblely from Train, Is Kissed by Victor Emmanuel, and Given Great Welcome by Thousands.

AMERICANS IN EVIDENCE.

"God Save the King" Rung Out on Chimes, and Royal Guest Acknowledges Compliment with a Salute—Driven Through the City.

ROME, April 27.—King Edward arrived here from Naples this afternoon and was received by King Victor Emmanuel in person, who escorted the visiting sovereign through the densely-packed streets.

The monarchs received a great popular ovation.

King Edward, who was standing on the platform of his railroad car when the train reached the station, descended alone, almost before the train stopped.

King Victor Emmanuel stepped quickly forward and the two monarchs embraced and kissed each other four times, the Italian King saying in English:

"I welcome you with all my heart to Rome."

The crowds along the route followed by the kings numbered 400,000, including 10,000 to 12,000 British and a great many Americans, as shown by the number of Stars and Stripes displayed.

The United States Ambassador, Mr. Meyer, and his family had a balcony in the middle of the Via Nazionale. It was decorated with American colors. The center of the American manifestation was at the American Episcopal Church, St. Paul's, which was decorated with American and Italian flags.

The church being on the route of the procession, the Rev. Dr. Nevill, erected a large stand, where about eighty guests, including the Rev. Dr. Walpole Warren, of New York; the Rev. Dr. Lerrill, of Middletown, Conn.; Col. Goddard, of Providence, R. I.; and William Doan, a brother of Bishop Potter, of New York, were seated.

When the two Sovereigns approached the church they were pleasantly greeted by hearing the chimes of the church play "God Save the King," followed by the Italian Royal March.

King Edward recognized the courtesy of the Americans by saluting and smiling.

Edmond before had the city been so sumptuously decorated. The streets and buildings were brilliant with flowers, flags and draperies, and on all sides were to be seen the entwined flags and arms of Italy and Great Britain.

EVANESCENT BROTHER, SHOT HIMSELF.

When Former Tried to Disarm Joseph V. Martineau the Latter Threatened, Then Broke Away and Committed Suicide.

After threatening to shoot his brother because he objected to his drinking and carrying a revolver, Joseph V. Martineau, of No. 501-1/2 East Eighty-third street, committed suicide this afternoon.

Martineau, who was twenty-four years old and a Canadian, returned from the Boer war in November last and took up his residence with his brother. The death of his father and mother some six weeks ago started him on the spree which ended in death. He gave up his position in a wholesale house then and began to drink heavily. On Sunday night he came home much under the influence of liquor. His sister-in-law informed her husband of the fact this morning and he started out to find his brother. After searching the saloons in the neighborhood he found him in M. J. Jennings's place, No. 1556 First avenue.

"I want that revolver," said the brother.

"Well, you take it then," was the reply, and Martineau, crazed with drink, pointed the revolver at his brother.

A struggle followed and the brother prevented the shot from being fired and ran into a rear room. The brother hurried back and when he saw his brother there he could prevent it, and when those in the saloon reached the room Martineau had shot himself through the head.

Martineau enlisted in the Canadian army and was sent from Montreal to join Buller in South Africa. He was one of the last commands to be sent home. He was wounded and was promoted for bravery on the field.

GIRLS IN PANIC ON AN ELEVATOR

Lift in the Shirt Factory of Brill & Kiegan Gets Beyond Control When Filled with Employees.

MISS GINSBERG BADLY HURT.

Attempted to Leap Through Glass Door and Was Caught Between Floor and Elevator—Ten Companions Escaped Without Injury.

Caught in a runaway elevator and becoming panic-stricken, Anna Ginsberg, twenty years old, of No. 396 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was seriously injured to-day. Ten other girls who were on the lift when it became unmanageable escaped injury by remaining on the machine until it reached the cellar.

Miss Ginsberg is employed in the shirt-waist factory of Brill & Kiegan, No. 121 Wooster street. The elevator, in charge of John Martin, was coming from the fifth floor, with eleven girls on it. At the fourth floor it seemed to be going faster than usual, and when the third floor was reached the elevator man admitted he could not control it.

At the second floor Miss Ginsberg, thoroughly frightened, made a jump to get off, hoping to break through the glass door. She was caught by a man on board and dragged back, after she had cut herself and was in danger of being crushed by the elevator.

An instant later the lift struck the bottom and all the girls jumped off. Unconscious with her head hanging over the elevator, Miss Ginsberg was unable to help herself. The girls tried to pull her from the elevator, but in a second it was on its way upward. At the ceiling of the basement Miss Ginsberg was caught between the elevator and her body forced from the elevator.

She fell down the shaft one floor and was picked up apparently more dead than alive. An ambulance was called and the injured girl sent to St. Vincent's Hospital. Martin, the elevator man, was arrested. All he knew was that the elevator got away from him.
